

Possip 2024 Fall Interns

Danielle Bernstein Business Analyst Intern

Danielle Bernstein is a Senior at Vanderbilt University double-majoring in Human and Organizational Development and Sociology. While her passion lies in promoting educational equity, Danielle has experience in non-profit consulting, the neurodivergent space, and creating and leading campus DEI initiatives. She is interested in pursuing a career at an organization working to promote systemic equity or within an organization working on their internal DEI efforts. In her free time, she enjoys reading, thrifting, and trying new cuisines.

Jasmine Chen (Jie Xin Chen) Data Specialist Intern

Jasmine is a Master's student in Analytics at Northeastern University, expected to graduate in March 2025. Originally from Taiwan, she shifted from Hospitality Management to data analytics, gaining experience through internships in the education and entertainment sectors. Jasmine's diverse background and adaptability drive her passion for data-driven decision-making. Outside of academics, she enjoys dancing, working out, gaming, and socializing. Jasmine is focused on advancing her career as a data analyst or project manager.

Zac Klinger

Business Analyst Intern

Zachary Klinger is a Vanderbilt student in the class of 2025 where he will be graduating with a degree in Human and Organizational Development with minors in Business and Economics. He has previous growth initiative experience with nonprofits in Andean Peru and starting an undergraduate-led nuclear fusion research team. Guided by his work as a tutor for Habitat for Humanity and Next Steps at Vanderbilt, Zac is looking forward to directing his efforts towards the dynamic Education Technology sector.

Anna Mullinger

UI/UX Intern

Anna Mullinger is a UX/UI designer with a passion for innovative and accessible design. With an eye for detail, she brings a designer's perspective to the look and feel of Possip's growing interface. She is a 4th year communication design student in the University of Cincinnati DAAP program, studying a variety of design related fields. Before Possip, she worked at UC's Center for Cyber Strategy and Policy creating educational videos and marketing materials. In her free time, she enjoys making music, watching horror movies, and cooking with friends
